Introduction

Whether the trainees are new to procurement and supply or are looking to develop their existing skills, CIPS offers the qualifications to equip the trainees for a successful career, because CIPS understand what employers are looking for. CIPS internationally recognized qualifications will give the trainees the skills and knowledge to thrive in whatever stage the trainees are at in their career.

CIPS qualifications lead the trainees to MCIPS which shows them a highly skilled professional and strategic thinker, and as a full member of CIPS (MCIPS) the trainees will have achieved an internationally recognized award which represents the global standard within the profession for a procurement and supply. Annual subscription renewal ensures continued use of the accreditation. Those with MCIPS can earn 17% more than non-qualified colleagues and 64% of employers request it (or studying towards it) when recruiting.

Why CIPS Certification

CIPS qualifications are the top qualification available to procurement professionals, and are held in high regard by the vast majority of international recruiters and employers in the procurement and supply chain professions.

CIPS qualifications are highly regarded as the ideal training for procurement professionals of all levels, as they are accredited by the organisation that promotes and protects the high standards of the sector, and therefore it can be trusted that the training and knowledge acquired from these qualifications is of the required standard. For this reason, many employers will choose to fund their staff's CIPS qualifications as part of the overall training for a role in the company.
